1. The Parchim (M 54/T 74) airfield was occupied by 16 jet fighters with swept-back wings and two single-engine monoplanes                      on 14 September 1950. There was no flying although the weather was good. Truck                      with a box-like superstructure left the field. No radio installations or AA gun emplacements were seen. A German employed at the field said that 600 officers and                      were stationed there. *
